

Thanks for your interest in sponsoring Flock! In its third year, Flock brings together Fedora contributors from around the world to discuss new ideas, work to make those ideas a reality, and continue to promote the core values of the Fedora Community: Freedom, Friends, Features, and First.

Fedora is a rich and thriving international free software community that produces a popular distribution of Linux® every six months. This distribution is the core that is used by Red Hat to create the Red Hat® Enterprise Linux product family.

Just like Fedora, Flock thinks big. It features four full days of talks, workshops, hackfests and sprints. We aim to bring in as many of our contributors from around the world as possible, regardless of their personal financial situations, in addition to streaming all of our presentations live over the internet for interactive participation from those who can't join in person. Sessions will cover the breadth of the Fedora Project, including cloud, community, design, desktop, embedded, fonts, gaming, hardware, infrastructure, marketing, quality & testing, security, and more.

Most of our funds go directly to covering travel and lodging costs for our contributors, in addition to the variety of costs such an event incurs. We try to be as cost-effective as possible while putting on a great event for the Fedora community, so even small contributions are big. We hope that you will join us!
